(Disclosure Update) Decision Not to Establish New AutoTech Subsidiary

JDI announced in its May 15, 2025 release “Establishment of New AutoTech Subsidiary” that it would transfer the rights and obligations related to its AutoTech automotive display business to AutoTech Inc., a newly established wholly-owned subsidiary, on October 1, 2025. Subsequently, on September 11, 2025, JDI decided to postpone the new subsidiary establishment to April 1, 2026.

Today JDI decided not to establish the new subsidiary, subject to approval at its June 24, 2026 shareholder meeting (AGM).

1. Rationale

The establishment of a new AutoTech subsidiary was originally envisioned to accelerate decision-making and create a more agile operating structure for AutoTech. However, changes in JDI’s strategic circumstances and the business environment have increased the importance of focusing resources and operating AutoTech in an integrated manner, enhancing production flexibility and driving JDI’s growth and long-term value creation for JDI shareholders.

2. Earnings Impact

The impact of this decision on JDI’s FY27/3 consolidated earnings is minimal.

JDI will continue to grow AutoTech as a key operating business while executing on its BEYOND DISPLAY growth strategy.
